Reflecting on our years spent at ULowell, we cannot help but see the changes we have gone through, both as individuals and as a group. As newly arrived freshmen, we were nervous and uncertain of ourselves and our surroundings. Lost in what seemed a confusing maze of professors, people and red tape we huddled together in groups for protection.

Soon we learned what this community had to offer and we began to accept what it had to give. Knowing there were people to pick us up if we fell, we learned to accept responsibilities and challenges on our own. We grew up. With this growth we began to give to others what had been given to us. We began not only to learn, but to teach, not only to take, but to give and to share.

This experience is what has made us whole persons—some of it we will take with us and some we will leave behind. This is the part of our education that could not have developed anywhere else.

From the moment we stepped into Fox Hall for orientation, until the moment we collected that diploma. We saw thousands of faces. Many we got to know, while many others were only fleeting glimpses. Some people we only knew one side of: the quiet boy in class who always knew the answers, the cute girl in the cafe who always smiled, and those you never saw doing anything except drinking and dancing. Then there were those we knew almost as well as ourselves. We ate, studied, partied, laughed, and cried together. We learned and grew together, as well as individually. These mixtures of personalities, all sides of them, made our years at this university the essence of the "college experience"

The presence of the University in Lowell has allowed reciprocation of ideas and many opportunities for growth. The revitalization of the downtown area along with the arrival of many new industries has given new life to the city.

The University has had a positive influence during this revitalization period-providing academic excellence and cultural opportunities for its people. College students supply a strong economic market in the city, purchasing goods from local merchants and socializing at local establishments.

In return, the city offers us numerous opportunities to test the knowledge we have gained in our classrooms. We practice medical procedures, counseling techniques, and teaching strategies in Lowell's hospitals, clinics, and schools. Local industries such as Wang, Raytheon, and Digital have provided our Business and Engineering students with computers, internships, jobs, and scholarships. The community, in conjunction with the University, is establishing a brighter future for Lowell.

The

More than just an education is attained . . . SCHOOL SPIRIT is not only an essential part of the curriculum for a well balanced career of any student, but is also a vital component in the University's well being as a community.

SCHOOL SPIRIT benefits on the individual level in that it helps to develop loyalty, dedication, and strive toward a worthwhile goal. It unifies and directs these individuals in attaining those worthwhile goals as a group, as a whole . . . SCHOOL SPIRIT.

From Wednesday nights at the Rat to Spring Carnival, the Activities Commission has been taking good care of entertainment-starved students. Offering a wide variety of events, the A.C. puts our activities fees to a great use; without many of the A.C.'s activities, we might all go stir-crazy!

The A.C. brought in a number of well-known bands this year, including The Stompers, Maurice Raymond and the Lonely Boys, Huey Lewis and the News, and the Talking Heads. Inexpensive and entertaining, these concerts provided students with a fun break from their studies.

We got over the Hump every week with a free keg of beer at the Rat and a good band courtesy of the A.C. When the keg was drained the band would come on and the real party would begin. Thanks, A.C.! We needed that.

And, of course there was a whole week of fun each Spring Semester with University Week. Semi-formals, ski trips, and the 24-hour film festivals were just a few of the week's activities. These events were all overshadowed, though, by the end-of-the-year bash that we all know and love: Spring Carnival! With three bands and truckloads of liquid refreshment, it was always a party to be remembered. This Activities Commission took good care of us.

Laughing through lectures and cramming for tests, the friends that you met in college were as important as the courses you studied. When the pressure was on a weary student, it took good friends to get through the night. Weeks of classes and nights of studying brought classmates together.

Weekends were a time to relax and leave all thoughts of schoolwork behind, but once Monday rolled around the fun could have been over; but it wasn't. As long as we had friends around, the fun never ended.

College could have been a stressful time; students have a lot to worry about: tests, programs, and papers, along with tuition, jobs, and money. We needed good friends to help us unwind. They're about the only thing that got us through finals.

The college experience could have been a lonely one if it weren't for the friends we made along the way. We became family during the four (or more) years that we spent here living, studying, working, and partying together. A bond developed that will last well beyond graduation, and these friendships will last a lifetime.

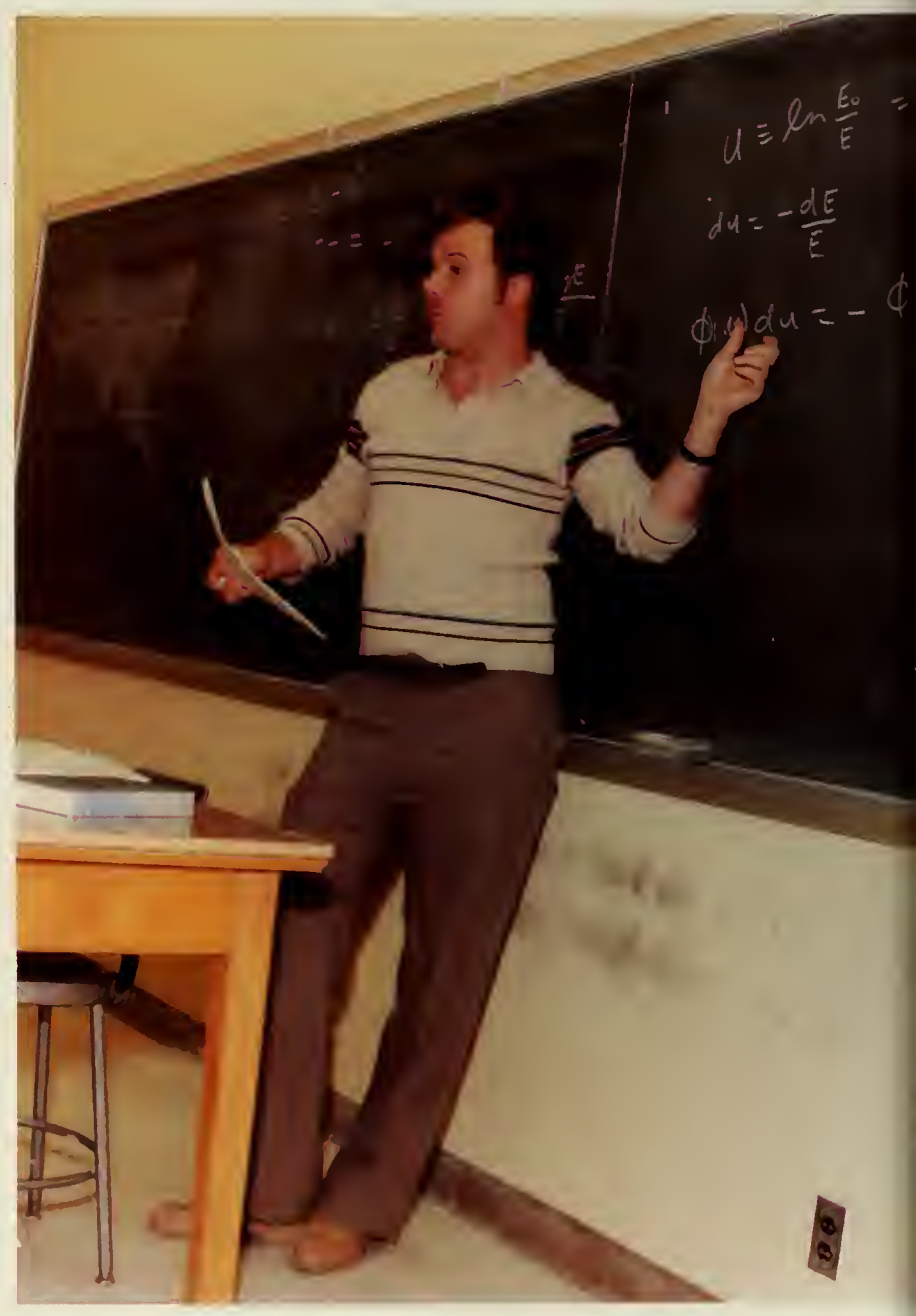

$u = \ln \frac{E_0}{E}$
$du = -\frac{dE}{E}$

College was a time to strive for the best, a stop-over on the way to fame and fortune. A time of decision-making and hard work, college was supposed to prepare us for the "real world." Now we're ready to go into that world—but is it ready for us?

Who among us didn't find themselves cramming for tests or writing papers the night before? Procrastination was so easy when it came to studying. But we soon learned that procrastination and easy times weren't to be allowed in that real world.

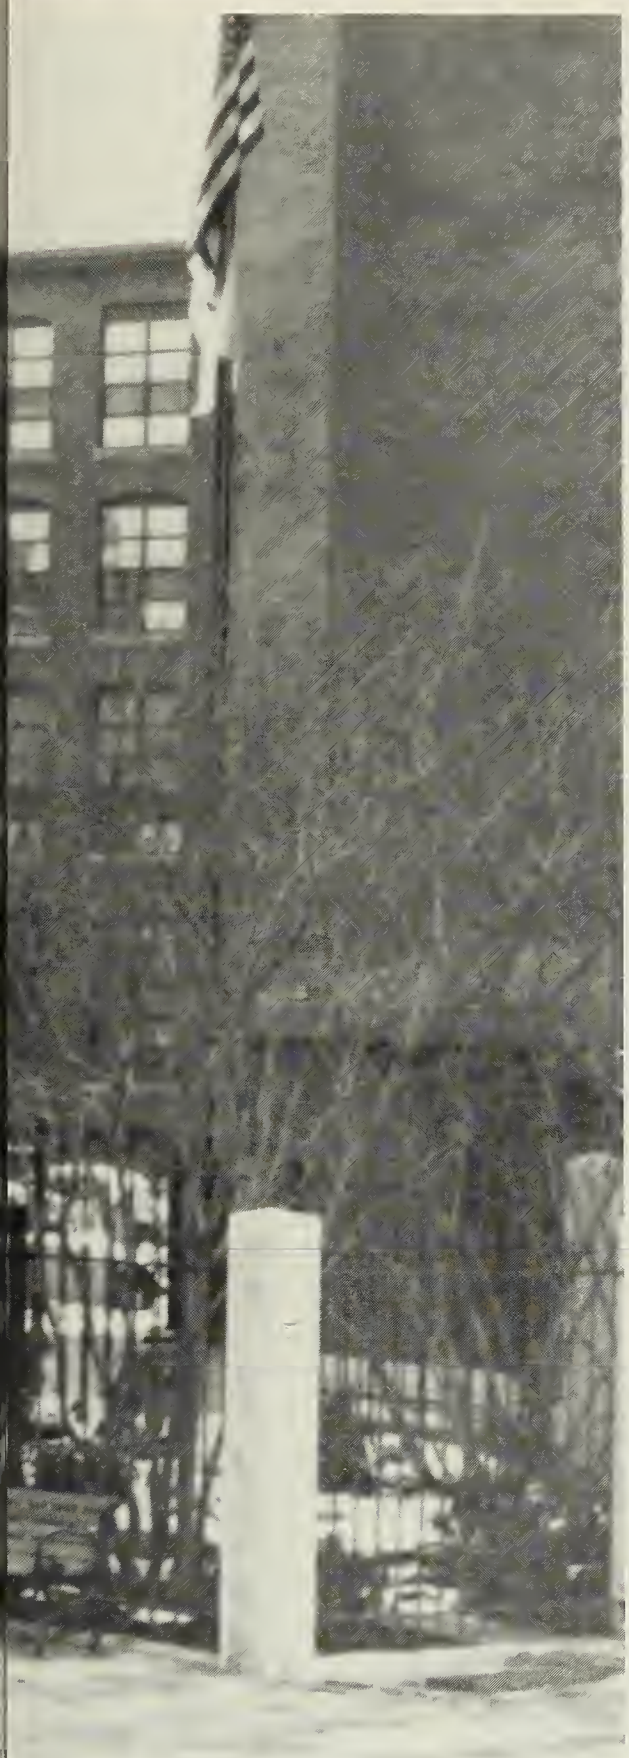

So much valuable time had to be given up to the books, but as you hold that diploma in your hand, wasn't it worth all that work? Now we're starting out on our fortunes, and we'll make that college education pay off.

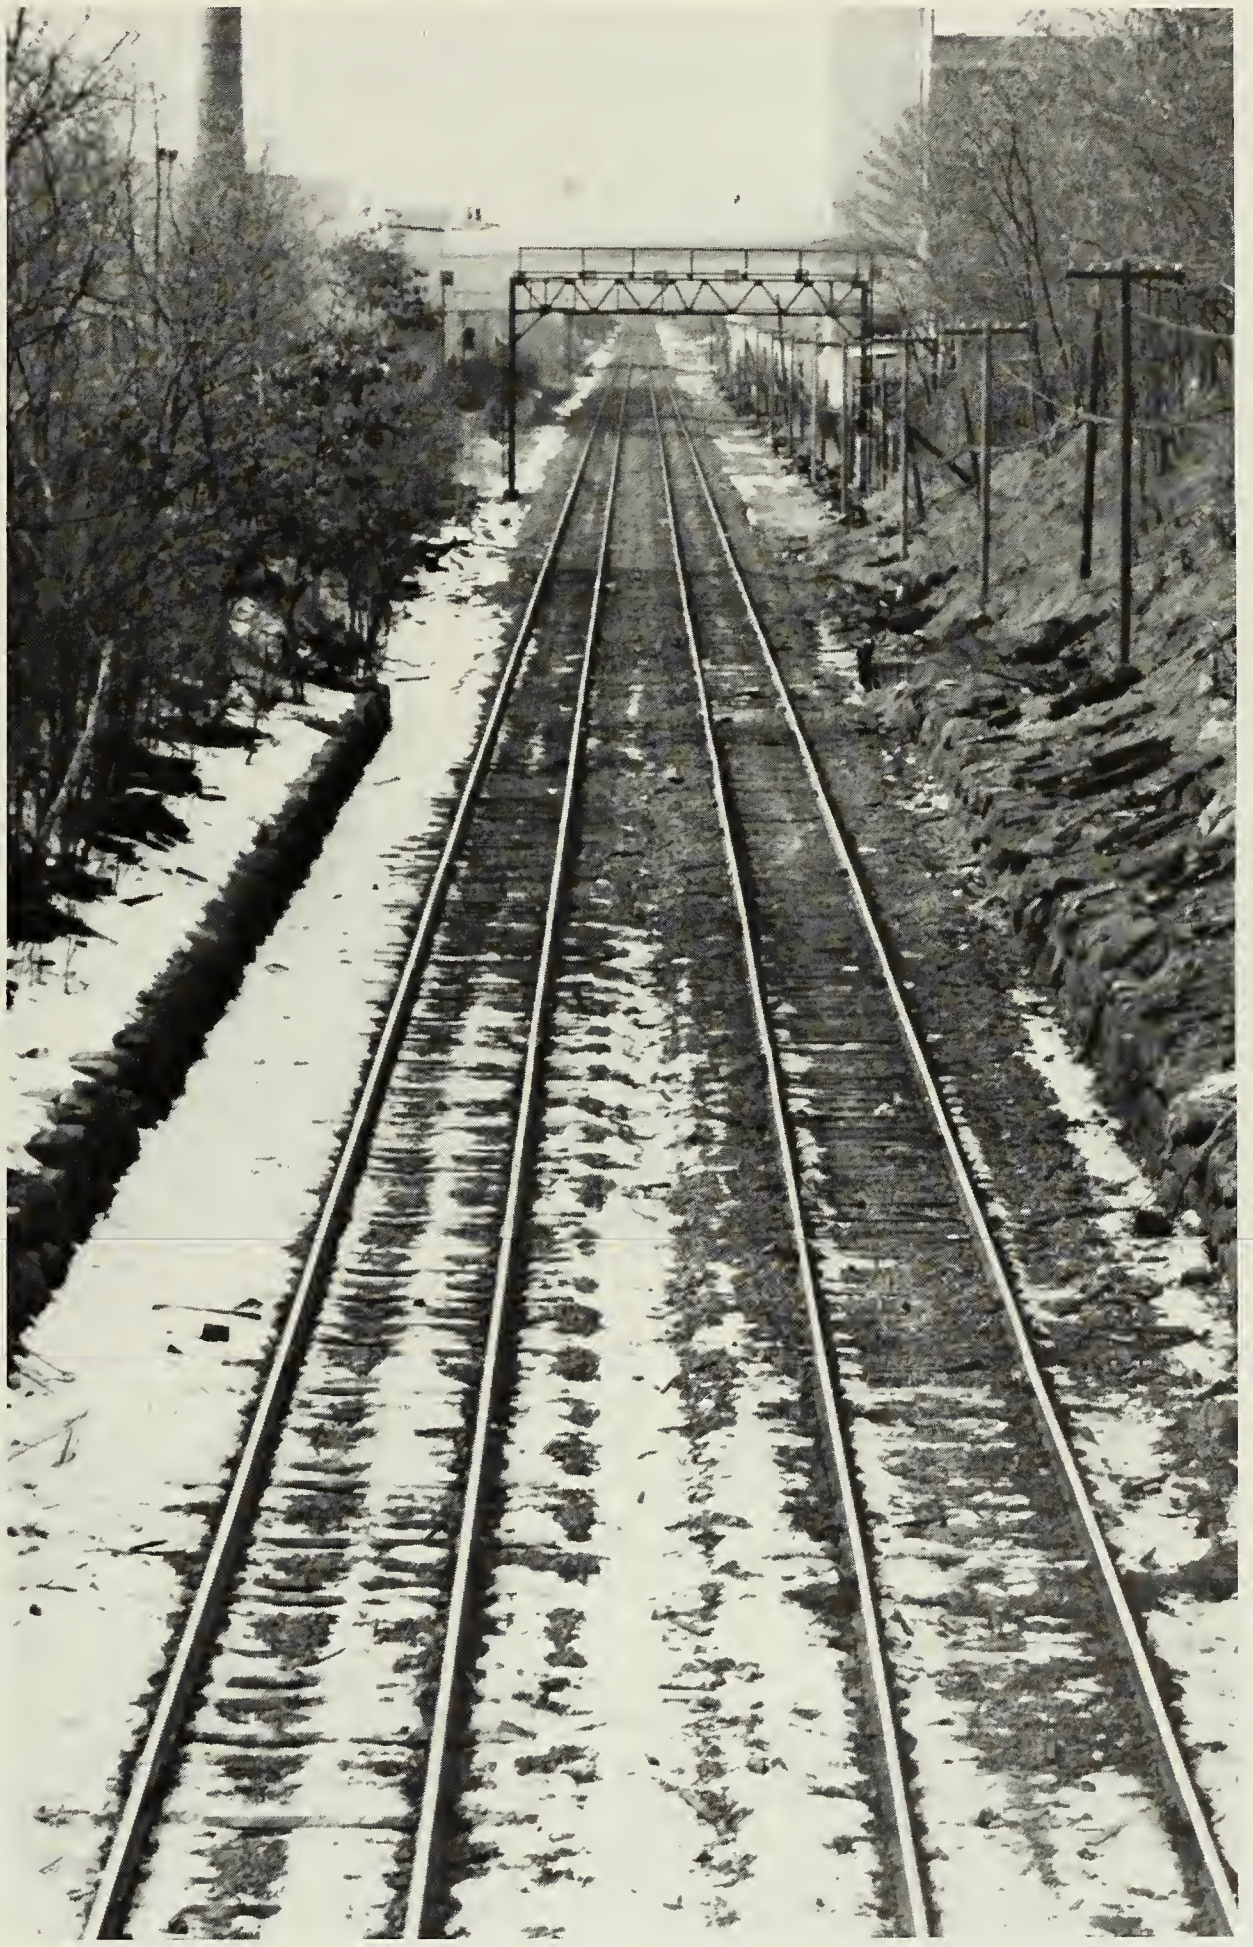

The Changing City . . .

Lowell is a city that built and has continually grown around the acceptance of new people and ideas. Incorporated as a city in 1826, Lowell was the first city specifically planned out before being established. Francis Cabot Lowell and the other Boston Associates brought their ideas of textile manufacturing together, and soon, the new city was the center of the American Industrial Revolution.

Lowell enjoyed a rapid growth and what seemed an endless prosperity. It was a mold copied many times over as cities everywhere attempted to follow the successful formula. From the early years of the mill girls to the waves of immigrant laborers, there seemed an endless supply of hard workers. By 1900, however, greedy mill owners replaced the idealistic originators of the Lowell plan, and by 1912 worker unrest and strikes sent the once-golden city into a steady decline.

World War I, with its great need of manufactured goods, brought a short rejuvenation period to the city. However, when the war ended, so did the need, and many mills found it necessary to move southward to save themselves. Lowell's prosperity continued on its downward trend that hit bottom during the depression years and stagnated in the 50's and 60's.

The 70's brought a movement in Lowell natives to get their city back on its feet. Since the merger of Lowell State University and Lowell Technological Institute in 1975. Lowell has again become a city moving forward. The expanding University of Lowell has helped people, ideas, and interests back to the city. Creation of the National Historic Park and approval of grants to revitalize the downtown area helped establish a new sense of pride within the city.

The Changing City . . .

Companies, now technological in nature, have learned the Lowell is still a good central location with hard working idealistic people. Avco, Rayethon, and Digital have established themselves in the area and Wang has centered its international headquarters in the city, employing thousands. Visitors are increasing by the thousands each year and Lowell has begun once more to enjoy prosperity.

Education remains a priority in Lowell; the University continues to grow, experimental magnet schools add a new dimension to learning, and Lowell is planning a model of academic excellence to be used as an example for all school systems. With strength based on education, Lowell cannot help but surge forward.

Lowell has again caught the attention of the country and as it teaches others, it learns from its own history. Getting people from all facets of Lowell's development interested in the overall advancement of the community is a good start. Interdependence and reliability upon one another is a successful combination which will be hard to defeat.

DEAN COSMO

The maturing experience of developing interpersonal skills while achieving an education; preparing one's self for a successful professional life.

Leo F. King
Dean of Students

I suppose the most obvious answer at an institution of higher learning would be an education, that is our business. If I may, I would like to expand upon that. I hope we can provide the opportunity for a student to recieve a quality education in whatever field the student wishes. But I hope that we can also provide the opportunities outside the classroom for the individual to grow as a person—socially, culturally, in every way . . .

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

May, 1984

One of the fundamental rewards of working in the academic world is to see young people develop an understanding of life and sharpen their intellectual abilities as a means of preparing to enjoy a rich and full life. It gives me great pleasure to see the members of the Class of 1984 join the other 25,000 graduates of Lowell. Your Class is not only the largest numerically, but it also represents the broadest spectrum of majors, concentrations and options in the history of the University. With certainty and pride, I look forward to the accomplishments and contributions that I know you will make in diverse and varied fields.

As you prepare to begin your professional life I congratulate you on your accomplishments and wish you every future success.

William T. Hogan

WILLIAM T. HOGAN
President

What do you feel is the most important gain a student achieves during his/her experience at the University of Lowell?

As I understand life, each person is an inseparable unity consisting of physical, emotional, spiritual, mental, and social "components" which must be developed and disciplined. The University of Lowell focuses on building the mental capabilities of students with an emphasis on developing a marketable skill. Finding satisfying work for "the few days of life God has given (us)" is noted by Solomon as being "good and proper" and "a gift from God" (Ecclesiastes 6:18). While it is only one aspect of life, I believe that the opportunity to find satisfying work is the greatest gain a student achieves while here at the University.

Tom Taylor
Assistant Dean of Students

I know the students at this university have gained greatly from the rich academic experience that has prepared them for the world of work or further advanced study and, simultaneously, brought them to the threshold of life long growth through learning. I feel the extracurricular aspects of university life have enriched and broadened the dimensions of each individual's potential. I hope the University has provided each student the opportunity to grow to the fullest, so that each one can make the appropriate personal choices.

Each student's most important gain during his/her sojourn at the University of Lowell is a careful blend of what I know, feel and hope.

James S. Donohoe
Dean of Freshmen

I hope that you graduate from the University of Lowell with confidence in yourself and in your ability to succeed. Your experiences at this University should have provided you with an appreciation of others and of the world in which you live. May you use your talents to the fullest, and may the world "outside the University" be a better place because you are there.

TALKING HEADS

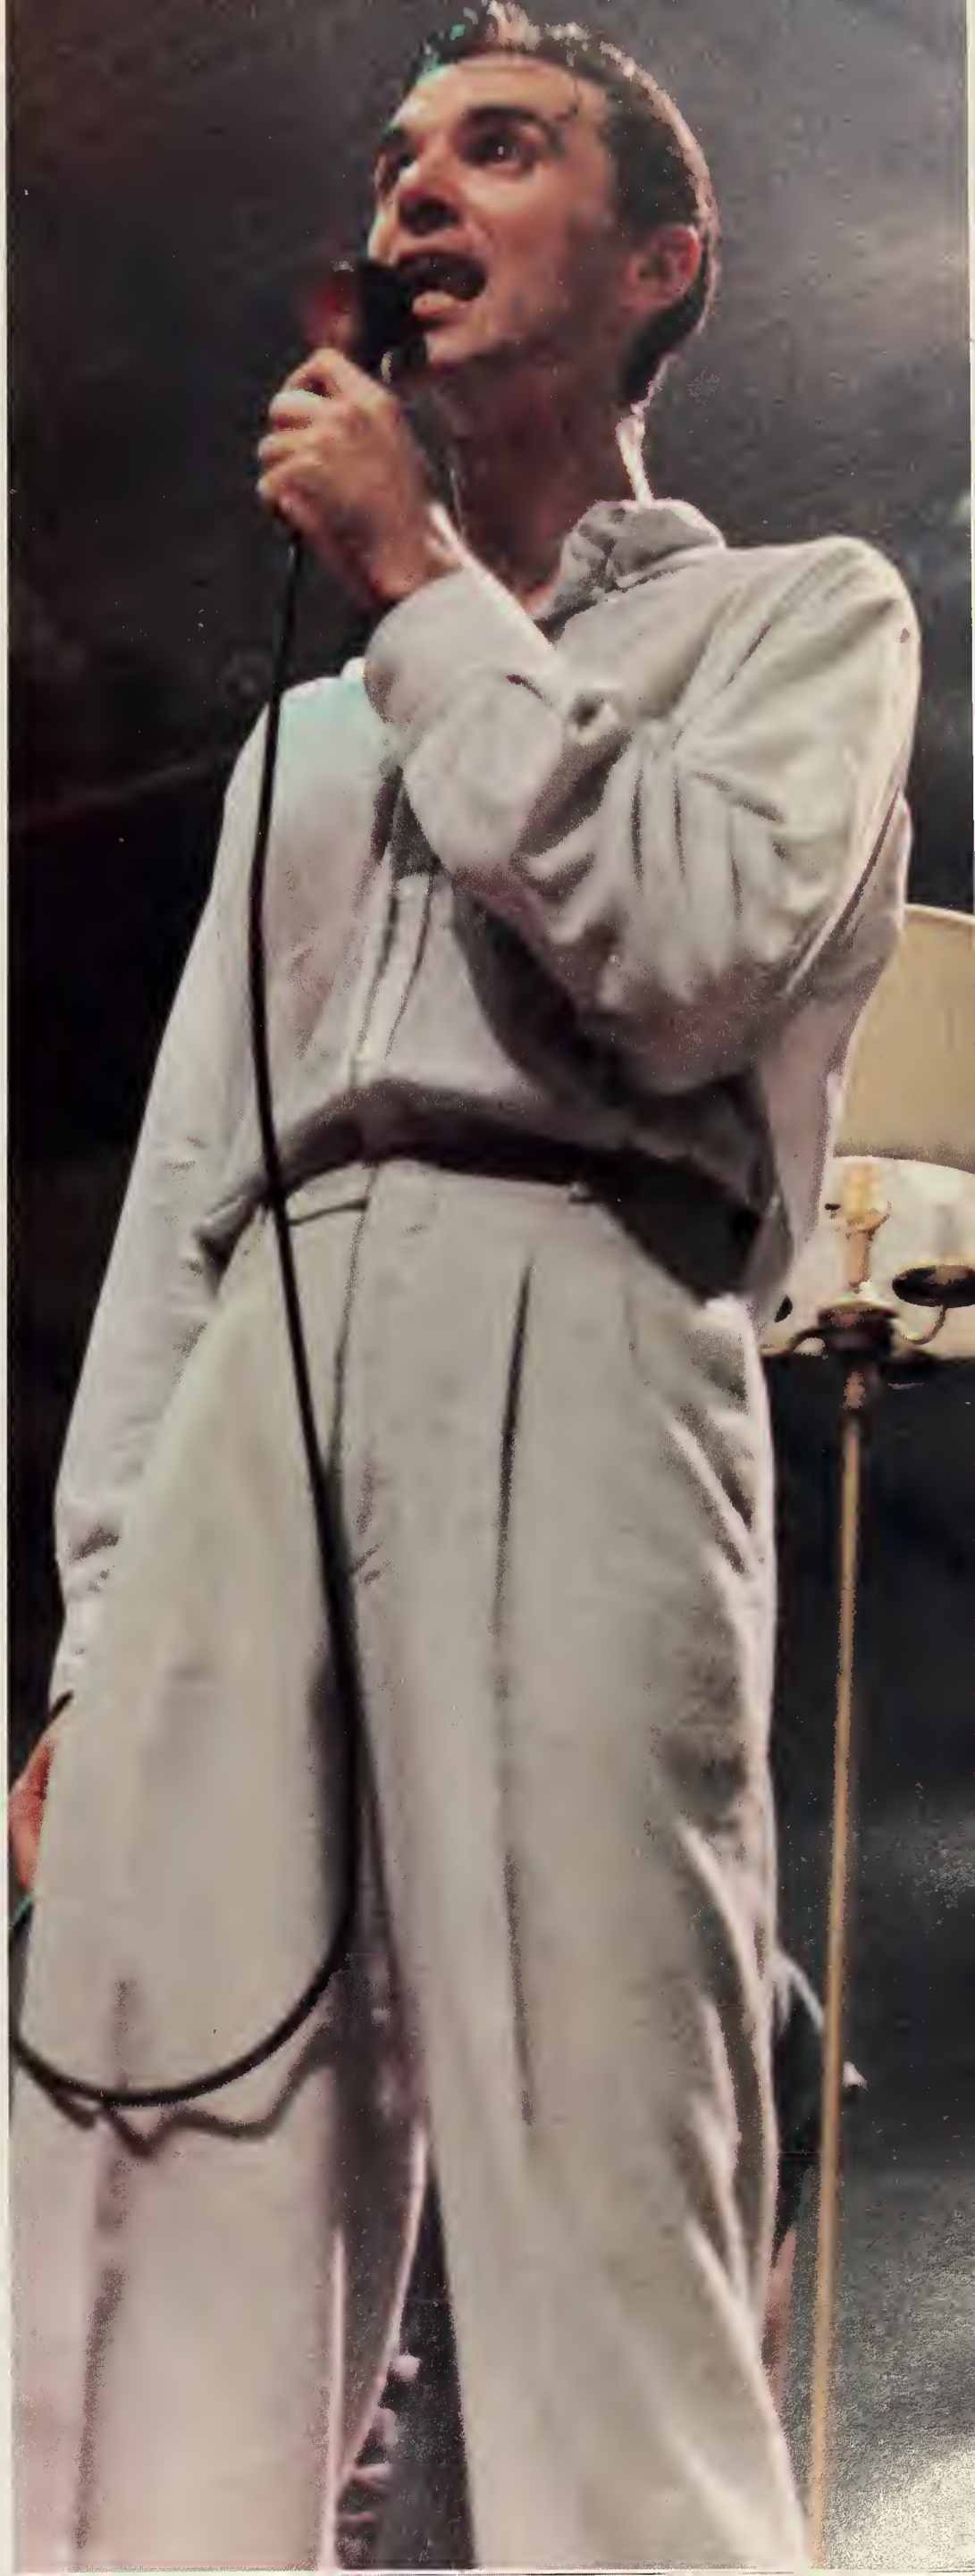

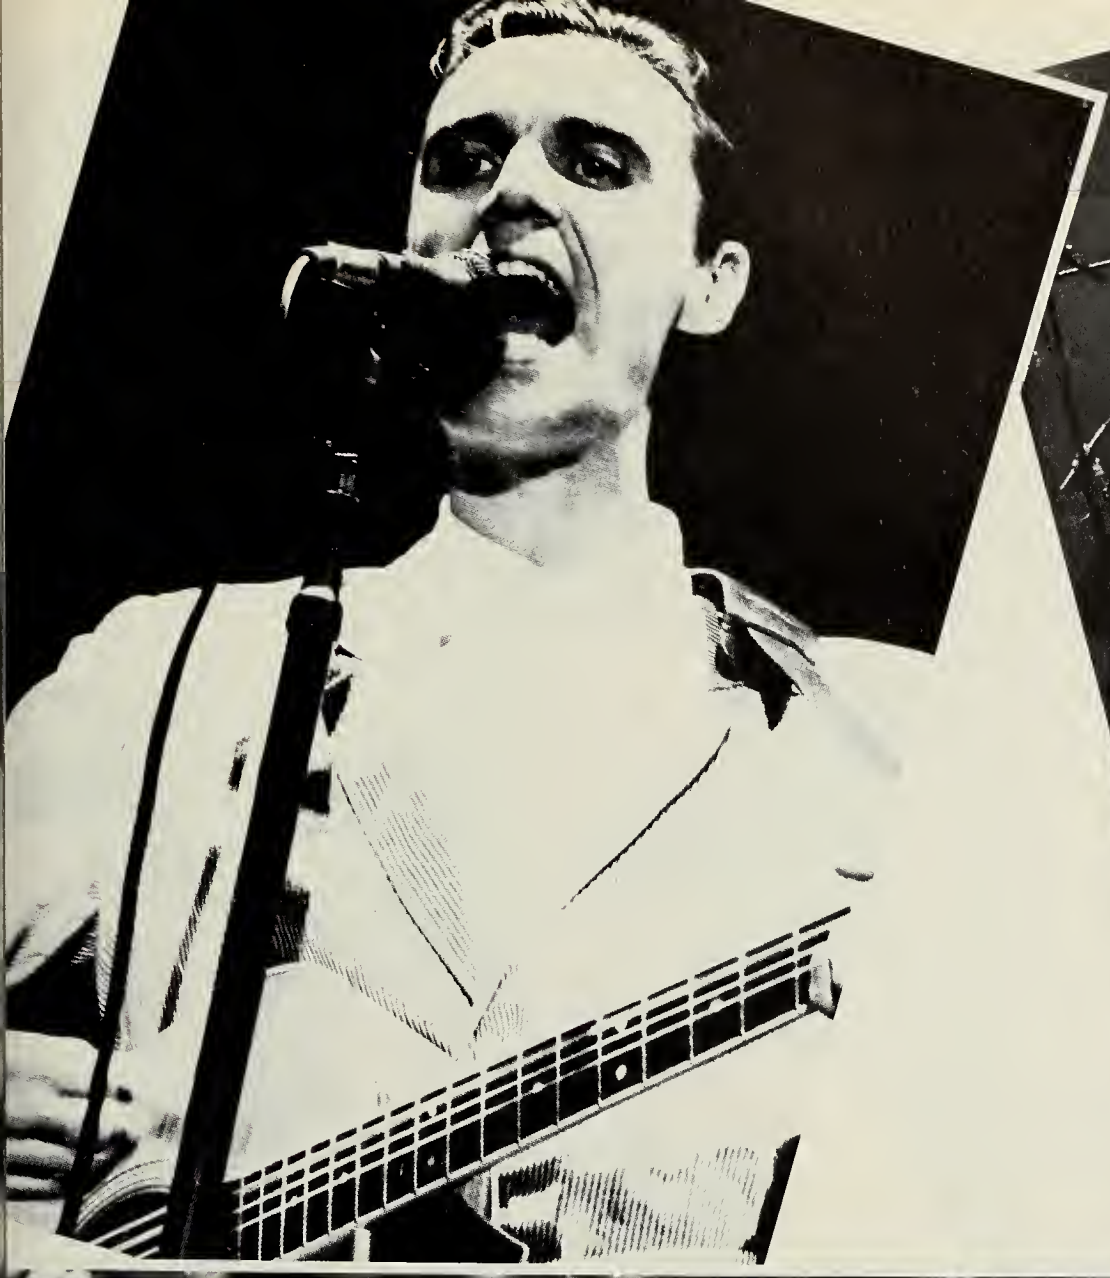

Everything seemed against it, but on Sunday, October 2nd the Talking Heads concert at Tully Forum went very well. When you look back on all of the problems, large and small, you may wonder how: (first) the show was only thirty minutes late starting; (second) a generator burnout caused the loss of the stage lights about twenty-five minutes into the show. Taking all of this into consideration, it's a miracle that the show was a success.

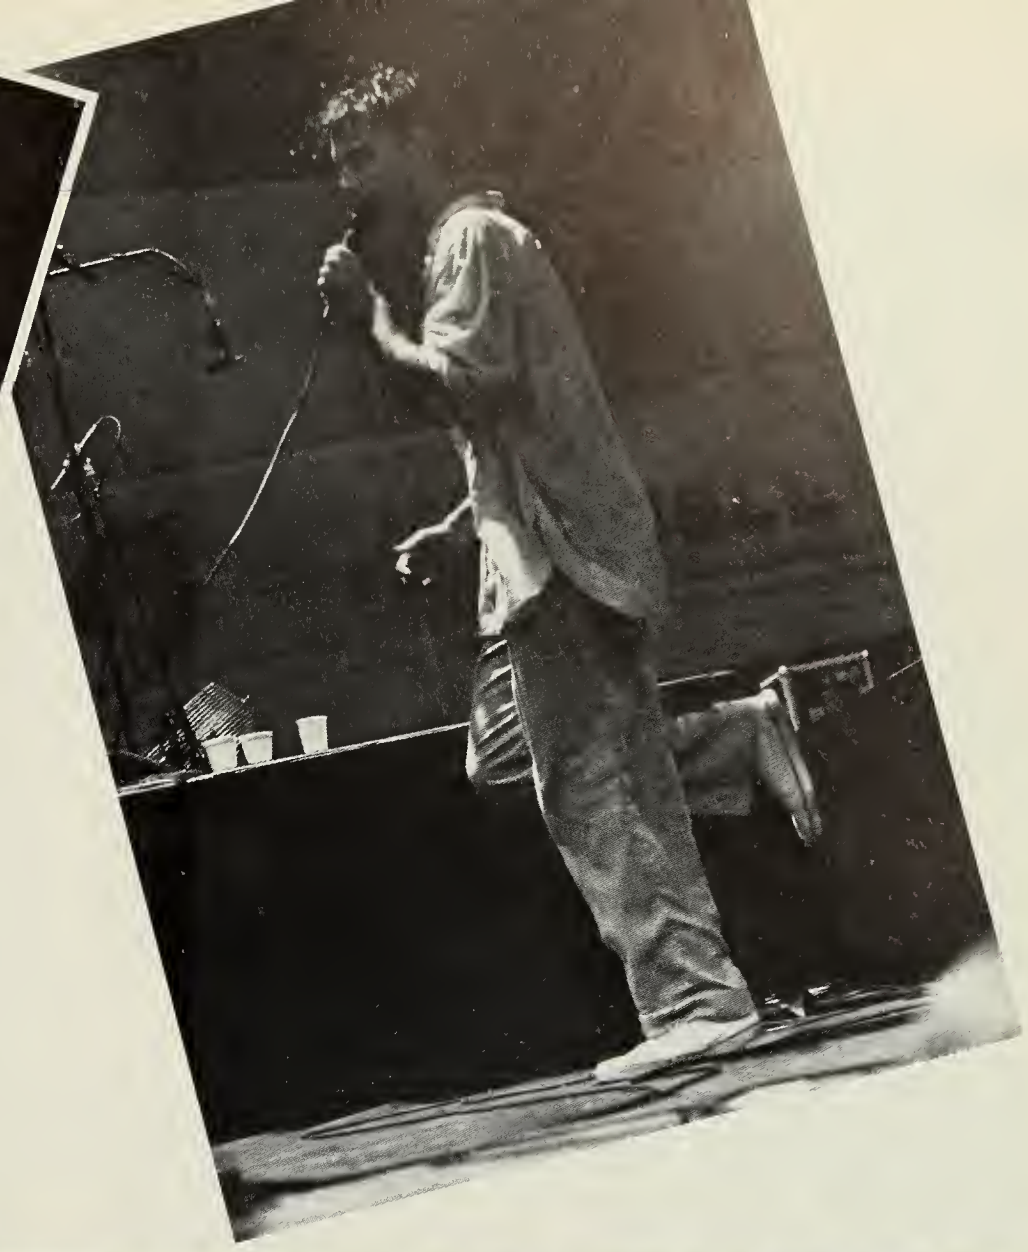

The Talking Heads turned the tables on the odds that were against them and came out with a successful night. They were upbeat, exciting, and determined to please. The whole band, including core members David Byrne, Tina Weymouth, Chris Frantz, and Gerry Harrison gave it their all. The charisma really came through! The thing that seemed to hold them all together was a good deal of respect for Bryne, who remains the center of the band. Byrne runs a "tight ship".

One other good note was the well-behaved crowd. Bad incidents were virtually non-existant as the audience had fun without causing trouble.

Concert On The Quad

The South Campus Quad again became the place for all Southies and any visiting Techies to spend their between class (and cut-class) time. Music for all tastes ranging from Jazz to Rock to Reggae at both amateur and professional levels provided a variety of entertainment. All the students had to do, for a change, was to sit back, listen, and enjoy.

HUEY LEWIS AND THE NEWS

On November 18, Huey Lewis and the News energized a less than half filled Cumnock Hall with songs like "Heart and Soul" and "I Wanna New Drug". The band began the concert to the pounding beat of "The Heart of Rock and Roll" and didn't stop until the audience had been shown the versatile talents of Huey and the band.

Their most recent hits received the best response, as the audience sang along in recognition. Cheers rang out as Huey played a harmonica solo, and grew as each band member in turn added his individual talent. Old time rock and roll, relying on rhythm, harmonies and a driving beat show where Huey's roots lie. All in all, the group gave a solid performance for those who were there. Those who missed this concert missed a great show.

The Stompers

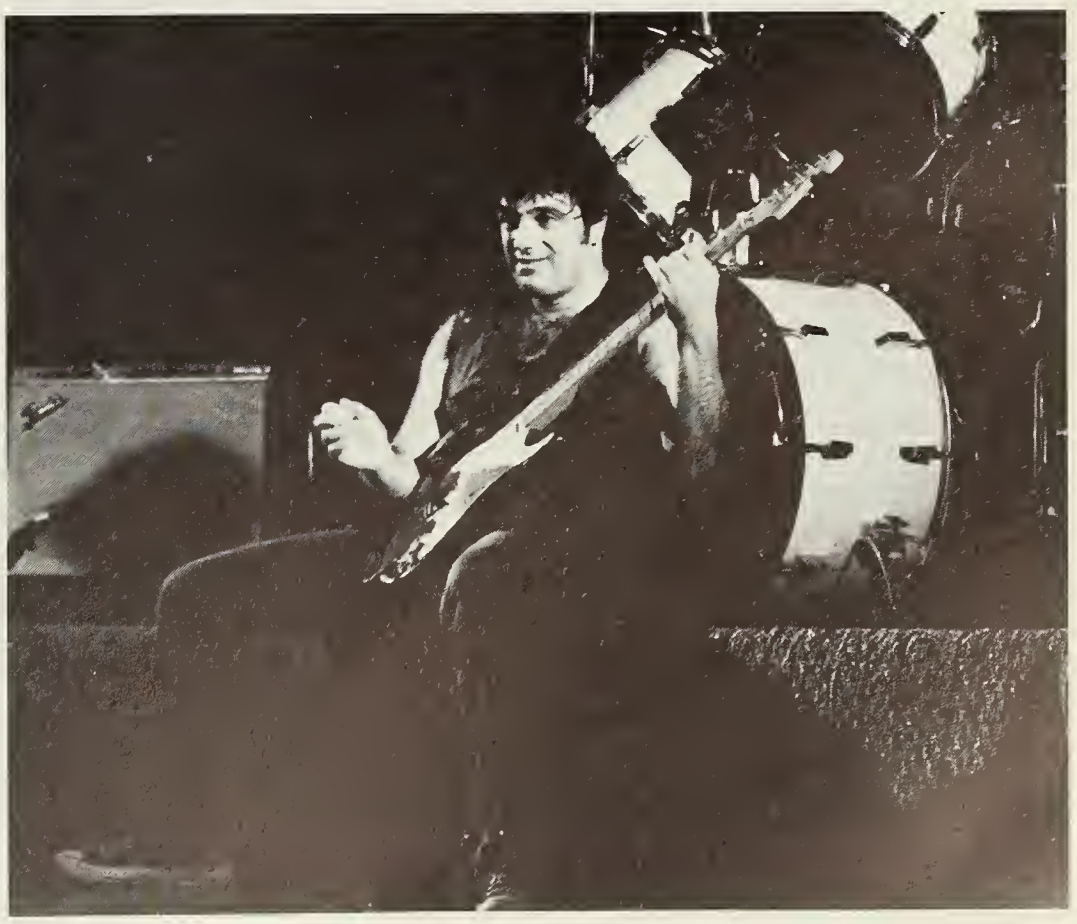

The Stompers, one of Boston's best and most popular bands of recent years, returned to U. Lowell to kick off their Fall College Tour. The capacity crowd was on its feet dancing from the first beat through to the last beat two and a half hours later, and most people were still dancing on their way out the door. The Stompers have been a favorite group of the University of Lowell since the Cafe Party Days. They never fail to provide one of the most upbeat, danceable shows on campus.

Sal Baglio, lead singer and song writer, led not only the band but the audience as well. His never-ending energy drew like a magnet and held tightly throughout the show. The other members of the band provided a strong, tight sound that never let the pace slow down.

The Stompers once again gave it all they had, and left the crowd anticipating its next performance.

WATER WORKS

HYDROELECTRIC PLANT

In October of 1983, construction of a 25 million dollar hydroelectric plant began, with a completion date set for August of 1985.

The plant site, which is located behind Leitch Hall, was leased out by the University with the agreement that $30,000 - $39,000 per year would be given to the University for a period of 99 years.

The plant will include classroom space for student research, as well as "hands-on" experience for the engineering students in the project itself.

Along with the construction of the plant, will be the construction of a fish ladder, in hopes of the salmon returning to the Merrimack. Also, if any fish go through the plant, they will pass through a counter, and will be lifted up by an elevator and let out to continue their travel upstream.

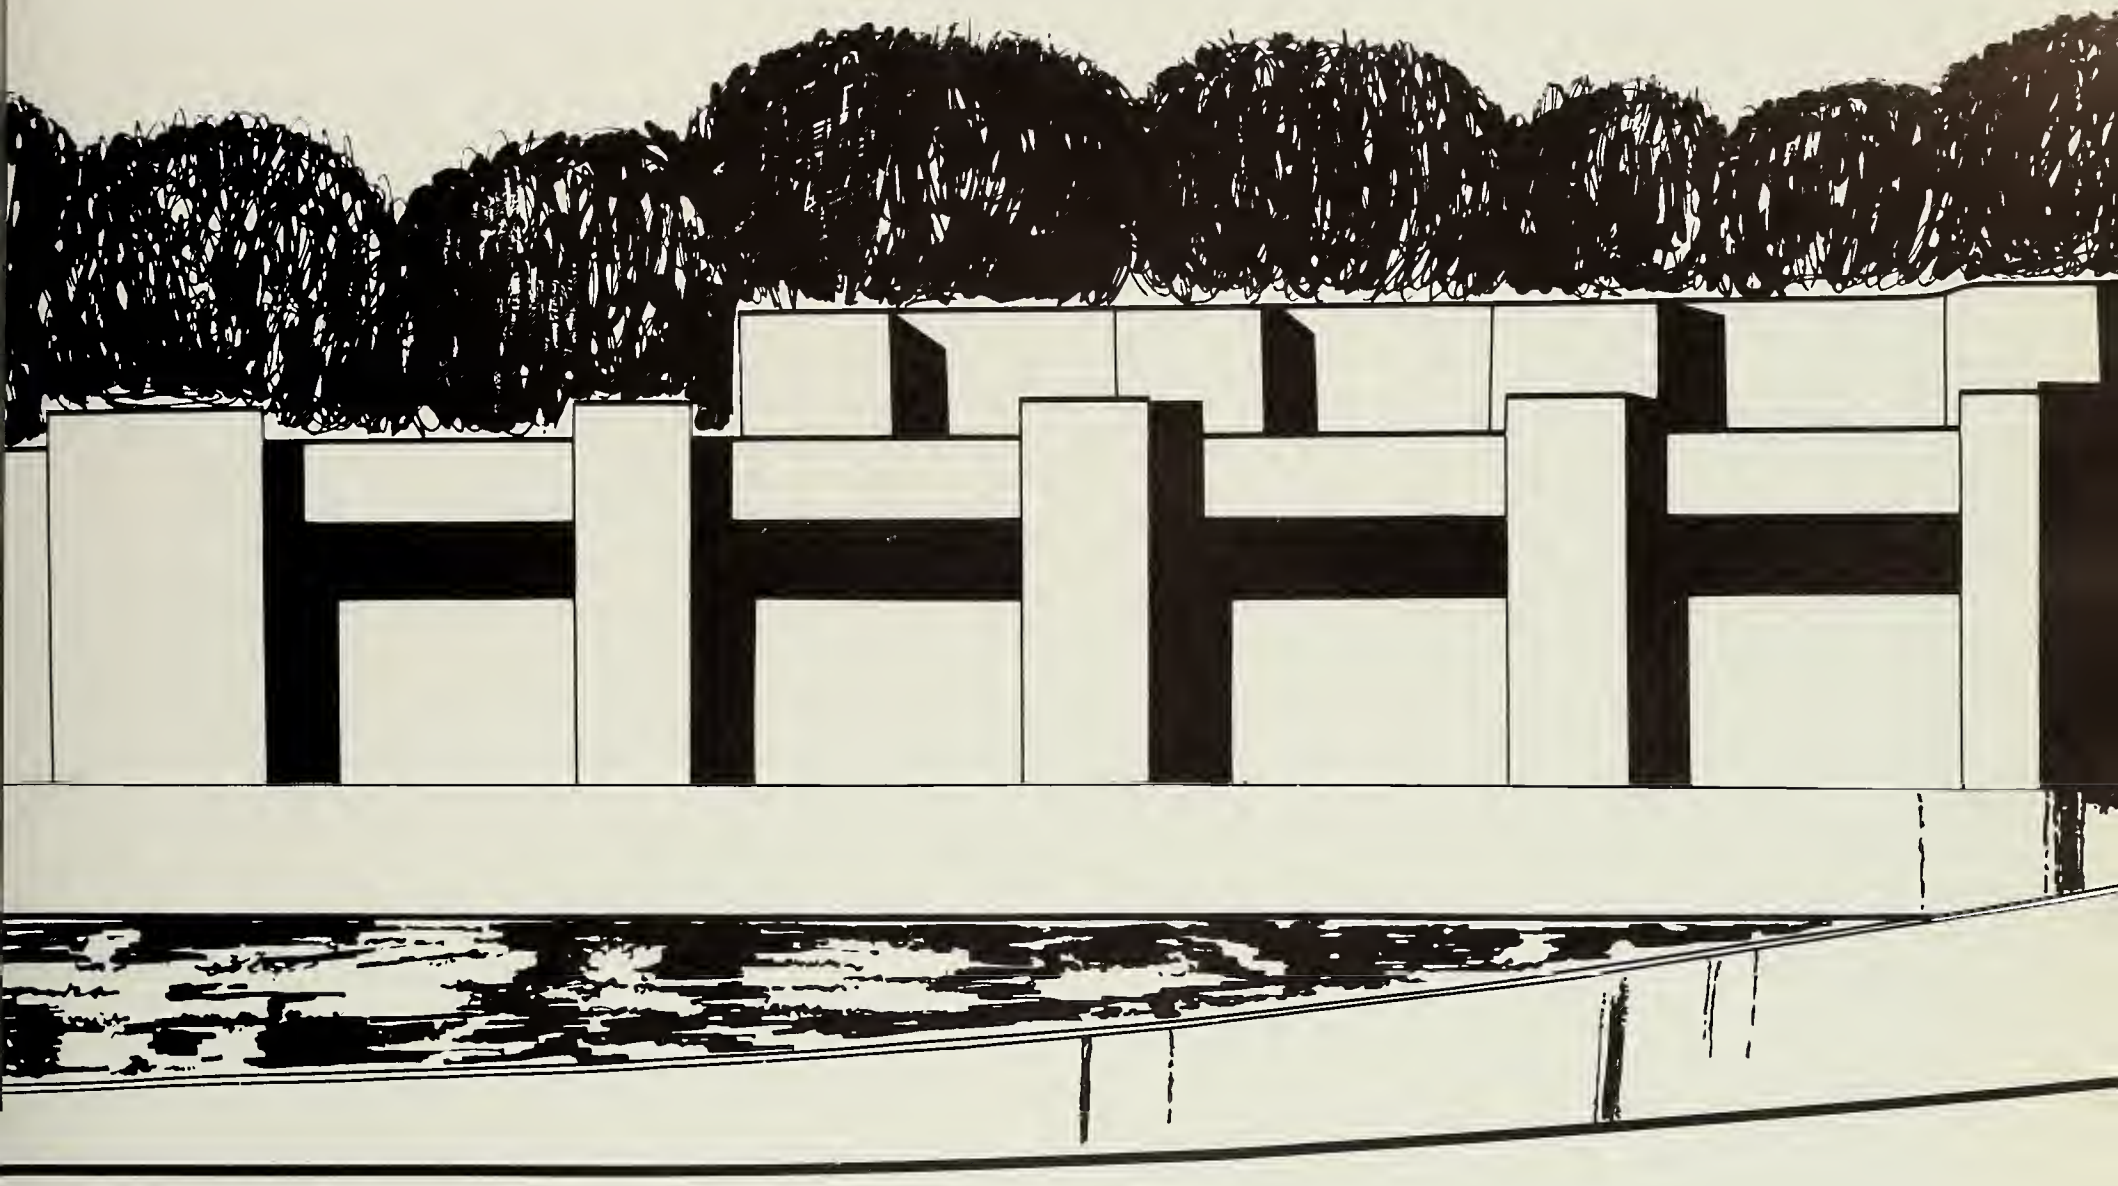

In the following sequence photo taken during the early stages of the plant construction, tons of earth are reduced to rubble by dynamite charges.

WEST CAMPUS

On May 1, 1984, Wang Laboratories of Lowell purchased the Middlesex County Training School, with its 64 acres of land located in North Chelmsford, approximately one mile from South Campus. Wang will present 34 acres of this land to the University as a gift and will be designated "West Campus".

In addition to the West Campus, the University will acquire a new Wang VS-80 computer system, valued at $130,000, and will be located in the Academic Affairs department.

Wang's donations to the University were presented with the stipulation stating, "The University of Lowell will accept the gift to use for educational purposes only. If the University does not adhere to this agreement, the land will revert back to Wang Laboratories."

In adherence to this restriction, the University has designated that the West Campus be used for graduate housing, as well as a football field with a track, and various practice athletic fields.

"Where's My Yearbook?"

The preceding message was not meant to offend anyone in any way, but rather to satire a foolish situation in a peculiar way. Isn't it funny that this was the most frequently asked question at the University this past year. How can there be a great demand for yearbooks here — when no one wants to work on the staff? Everyone likes to open up their old yearbooks and reflect on their college days — why doesn't anyone want to help produce it? The yearbook is a lot of work — but it's also exciting, challenging, and rewarding; but most of all, it's long-lasting. Just think of looking back, five or ten or twenty years from now, and saying, "I took that picture," or, "I wrote that poem," and feeling that special pride inside.

Last year's book was delayed. Mismanagement? One person cannot produce the Sojourn. Rather, a team is needed . . . . and with a good group of people, the work seems to be much easier, and a lot more fun.

In later years, when I look back at my "sojourn" here at the University of Lowell, I'll remember all the people I've met here, and all the good times we've had together; but most of all, I'll remember the challenge and reward of being the Editor-in-Chief of the 1984 Sojourn, and how much the experience has really changed me. I want to thank all the people I've worked with this year — because without them, this yearbook would never have made it.
